Victoria Falls
Zimbabwe-Zambia

Known as ‘The Smoke That Thunders’, for the immense spray and incredible noise caused by rushing water, Victoria Falls forms a natural border between Zambia and Zimbabwe. It is one of the world’s most breathtaking waterfalls and the greatest curtain of falling water, 1,708m wide and 108m high. Several islands on the crest of the falls divide the flow of the Zambezi River which plummets in a single vertical drop into a gigantic chasm.

Lake Bled
Slovenia

This turquoise glacial lake lies in a picturesque setting in the Julian Alps, encircled by forested slopes. Wooden rowing boats, pletnas, transport visitors to the enchanting Bled Island, where the beautiful Baroque Church of the Assumption has a 52m tower and a Wishing Bell, which can be rung for good luck. On the north shore is the medieval Bled Castle, built on a sheer cliff face, the oldest in Slovenia, with grand 19th century villas below.

Wat Mahathat Temple Sukhothai Historical Park Thailand

The ruins of Sukhothai, the capital of the Sukhothai Kingdom in the 13th-14th centuries and the cradle of Thai culture, scholarship, art and architecture are found in the Park. Its imposing walls contain 193 ruins including the royal palace and 26 temples, the largest being Wat Mahathat. Its design is based on a mandala representing the universe, with a principal stupa in the shape of a lotus bud, surrounded by smaller stupas in eight directions.

Amsterdam
Netherlands

At the centre of three huge bulb-growing regions, Amsterdam and its surroundings are transformed into a profusion of colour in springtime, the tulip season. During the Tulip Festival in the month of April the city's parks, canals, streets, and pavements are adorned with colourful tulips. Along the canals are charming traditional houses with ornate facades and gables, originally homes for the wealthy, many built at the height of the 17th century.

Laguna Colorada or Red Lagoon
Uyuni Salt Flats, Bolivia

This shallow salt lake in the southwest of the Bolivian altiplano is known for the red colour of its waters, caused by red sediments and pigmentation of algae. It is dotted with white islands, containing borax. This high-altitude desert is an otherworldly landscape, abundant with volcanoes, hot springs and geysers, surrounded by the towering Andes and populated by pink flamingos, drawn to the salt lakes, due to an abundant supply of plankton.

Kabukicho District Tokyo, Japan

As the sun sets, the vibrant streets of the Kabukicho district of Tokyo are illuminated with a kaleidoscope of dazzling neon signs, synonymous with the city's bustling nightlife and entertainment. The main entrance for the crowds of people to the 'area that never sleeps' is a red neon-lit arch. Kabukicho developed in an area destroyed during WWII and rebuilt to be a Kabuki (traditional Japanese) theatre district which never materialised.

Jardin du Luxembourg
Paris, France

Situated on the Left Bank, the Luxembourg Gardens, inspired by the Boboli Gardens in Florence, were created upon the initiative of Queen Marie de Medici in 1612. The extensive garden today is owned by the French Senate which meets in the palace. It is known for its lawns, tree-lined promenades, tennis courts, flowerbeds, model sailboats on its octagonal Grand Bassin, as well as 106 statues including the monumental Medici Fountain built in 1620.

Monument Valley
Arizona, USA

These iconic flame-red sandstone buttes, mesas and pinnacles tower above the flat, empty desert landscape of Monument Valley – some of the most extraordinary natural landmarks of the southwest United States. Part of the Colorado Plateau, the bizarre, isolated monoliths form an enduring image of the American West, the backdrop of many Western movies. They have imaginative names such as Elephant Butte, East and West Mitten Buttes and Totem Pole.

Te Puia, Rotorua
Geothermal Park
New Zealand

Sitting within the Pacific Rim of Fire, the Rotorua region has one of the world's most active geothermal fields, shaping its dramatic volcanic and geothermic landscapes: towering cones, vast lava fields, and steaming vents, bubbling mud pools, geysers, and hot springs. The famous Pohutu Geyser in Te Puia erupts up to 20 times a day, spurting hot water up to 30m skyward. It erupts in tandem with the adjoining Prince of Wales' Feathers geyser.

Las Palmas, Gran Canaria Spain

Colourful houses on the hillside in Las Palmas, the capital of Gran Canaria, overlook Las Canteras beach. Founded in 1478, named for its abundant palms, it was the capital for the Spanish conquest of the Canaries and later a major supply port for ships bound for Spanish America. The oldest houses, dating from the late 15th century, the cathedral of Santa Ana and the house of Christopher Columbus are located in the colonial quarter, Vegueta.

Kangas, Norrbotten County, Lapland Sweden

The tiny community of Kangas, 150km above the Arctic Circle, is surrounded by a vast open wilderness of lakes and forests. Brightly coloured, traditional Swedish houses provide guest accommodation. Popular activities include skiing, snowmobiling, reindeer trekking and husky tours in winter and fishing, canoeing, hiking, and biking in summer. Norrbotten, Sweden's northernmost county, covers a quarter of its land area, but is sparsely inhabited.
